Architecture

ARCH.1

All 3rd party libraries are identified and known to be needed.

ARCH.2

Security controls are enforced on remote endpoints.

ARCH.3

Cryptographically sign and verify automatic updates.

Data Storage and Privacy

DATA.1

No sensitive data should be stored outside of the secure container.

DATA.2

No sensitive data is written to logs.

DATA.3

No sensitive data is shared with third parties unless it is a necessary part of the architecture.

DATA.4

The software does not hold sensitive data in memory longer than necessary and memory is cleared explicitly after use.

Cryptography

CRYP.1

The software does not rely on symmetric cryptography with hardcoded keys as a sole method of encryption.

CRYP.2

The software uses cryptographic primitives that are appropriate for the particular use-case.

CRYP.3

The software uses cryptographic primitives that are configured with parameters that adhere to industry best practices.

CRYP.4

Random values are generated using a sufficiently secure random number generator.

Authentication and Session Management

AUTH.1

If the software provides users access to a remote service some form of authentication such as username/password authentication is performed at the remote endpoint.

AUTH.2

If stateful session management is used the remote endpoint uses randomly generated session identifiers to authenticate client requests without sending the user's credentials.

AUTH.3

If stateless token-based authentication is used the server provides a token that has been signed using a secure algorithm.

AUTH.4

The remote endpoint terminates the existing session when the user logs out.

AUTH.5

A password policy exists and is enforced at the remote endpoint.

AUTH.6

The remote endpoint implements a mechanism to protect against the submission of credentials an excessive number of times.

AUTH.7

Sessions are invalidated by access token expiration.

AUTH.8

Sessions are invalidated at the remote endpoint after a predefined period of inactivity.

Communication

COMM.1

Data is encrypted on the network using TLS.

COMM.2

The secure channel is used consistently throughout the sofware.

COMM.3

The software verifies the X.509 certificate of the remote endpoint when the secure channel is established. Only certificates signed by a trusted CA are accepted.

Code Quality and Build Settings

QUAL.1

All inputs received from the endpoints are validated and if necessary sanitized.

QUAL.2

Object deserialization - if any - is implemented using safe serialization APIs.

QUAL.3

All third party components used by the software such as libraries and frameworks are identified and checked for known vulnerabilities.

QUAL.4

The software handles exceptions properly.

QUAL.5

In unmanaged code memory is allocated freed and used securely.

QUAL.6

An integrity check shall be performed and automatically monitored to detect image manipulations and reported to the CSC at start-up and runtime of virtual machine or container images

Environment

ENVI.1

The developer shall test proposed changes before deployment

ENVI.2

The developer shall harden host OS components under its responsibility according to accepted industry standards and best practices

ENVI.3

The developer shall harden orchestrator components under its responsibility according to accepted industry standards and best practices

ENVI.4

The developer shall harden container configurations under its responsibility according to accepted industry standards and best practices

ENVI.5

The developer shall harden guest OS components under its responsibility according to accepted industry standards and best practices

ENVI.6

Resilience level should be approved by human evaluator

ENVI.7

Network policies are defined to regulate inter-container communication based on minimal access.
